Web services

Many organisations, including associations, increasingly realise that having a website is vital for their communication with both members and non-members. When a website is created, it is important that it reflects the association's activities and clearly presents what the association 'wants to be'.

Motivation Office Support can assist your organisation in developing and managing your new or existing website and will be pleased to provide one or more of our web services to you, viz.:

Web drafting

Web drafting is a method supporting organisations when they consider what a website should be based on. This includes laying down wishes and requirements that the website should satisfy. In addition, we create a functional lay-out of the website that is the most logical for your organisation and draw up a management plan.

Website building and management

We had the MOS Management System (MMS) developed for building and maintaining websites. The MMS is a so-called 'content management system', enabling us to build and maintain websites very simply. Thanks to its modular composition, we can develop the right website based on any wish and any budget. We will send you an extensive list of available modules on request.

Content management

An attractive website deserves proper maintenance, because, evidently, a website is interesting only if new information is published on it regularly and that requires good content management. We have gained many years' experience in maintaining websites and writing web texts for a wide and varied audience.
