Your own online survey

Where communication is concerned, many associations realise that the opinion of its members and other interested parties is important for taking decisions and creating support. Drawing up a questionnaire and organising and conducting a survey may be a rather expensive and time-consuming exercise. In addition, it is essential that the results are processed quickly so that they can be used for concrete activities.

MOS has a very advanced and user-friendly survey tool available for its customers that is capable of minimising the costs of online surveys.

Service

The online survey tool processes and analyses the response automatically. If desired, you create cross reference tables and analyse specific answers of certain target groups. This tool provides you with technology and functionality for a successful survey of your association.

Scope

The online survey tool enables you to conduct target group-focused surveys and draw up questionnaires for various applications easily, such as conducting a quality measurement and evaluating or collecting feedback. Everything is done online, protecting the privacy of the respondents up to the highest level.

Costs

The costs depend on the size and complexity of your questionnaire. To save costs, in certain cases questionnaires can be used again after making minor adjustments. Depending on the number of surveys that you want to conduct annually, you may opt for either using the survey tool once only or for an unlimited number of times.
